

John Corbett Sales Director Northern Europe & Middle East

John Corbett is the UK sales director Northern Europe & Middle East for EnOcean GmbH and has been developing EnOcean's UK business for several years. Before joining EnOcean, John has worked for a number of semiconductor companies over the past 25 years including Fairchild, where he was the founder technical director, National and more recently Ember.

Although a seasoned technical sales and marketing professional, his engineering background has not been forgotten. This is being put to good use helping partners develop new & innovative solutions based on EnOcean's energy harvesting wireless technology.

John is leading a number of UK initiatives in the building, smart energy and industrial markets where EnOcean is being used. He is also responsible for EnOcean's partnership with IBM Watson IoT.
